BAND BIOGRAPHY

War Eyes is a hard hitting Canadian indie rock band formed in Victoria, BC in 2024. Drawing inspiration from punk, grunge, and indie rock legends like The Ramones, Nirvana, and The Killers, their sound is raw, emotional, and analog. Known for intense, high-energy live shows, War Eyes brings urgency and grit to every stage.

WAR EYES

Formed in 2024 by vocalist and guitarist Ryan Foster and drummer Steve Reynolds, War Eyes released its high energy debut EP (No Faces No Names) in early 2025. Lead guitarist Nick Honour joined soon after, expanding the band's sound with the melodic riffs and facemelting solos heard on the second EP (Let The Sun Rise) released in August 2025. The band rounded out their fulltime lineup in 2026 by welcoming bassist Jeff Cohen, and has since played a flurry of live shows in Victoria and Vancouver, while crafting their highly anticipated third EP (The Spell), dropping in early 2027.

LATEST RELEASE - LET THE SUN RISE - EP - AUG 2025

This is a record built on confrontation — with heartbreak, with loss, with the creeping rise of fascism, and with the shadows that live within us. From its blistering guitars and rock and roll drumming to its cathartic vocals, Let the Sun Rise burns with intensity. The title itself is a quiet manifesto: a recognition that light doesn't come easily — or at all — until we've faced the darkness head-on. These songs don't flinch. They ache, they fight, they dig deep. War Eyes reminds us that the essential quality of rock and roll music is its commitment to defiance and a refusal to go quietly.
